SHOCKING TALE OF BRUTALITY

Conditions in State Prison Declared Awful.

CAPTAIN SHIPLEY SCORES WARDEN

Attorney General Is Told of the Situation

Captain of Night Guards Tells How One Prisoner an Insane Man Is Given Nothing but Newspapers To Sleep Upon and How Handcuffs Are Worn Until They Cut into the Flesh

Columbus O Oct 12 A story of shocking brutality toward prisoners at the Ohio penitentiary was told Attorney General Hogan today by Solomon Shipley of Vinton county who until October 1 was captain of the night guard when the attorney general resumed his probe into penitentiary affairs

Captain Shipley testified that for twenty seven months the present management of the penitentiary had kept in the insane prisoner named Webb handcuffed and nailed in a cell with nothing to sleep on except a few newspapers that were tossed in from time to time to cover the stone floor

Shipley testified that there have been sixteen escapes from the penitentiary since Warden Jones assumed the management and that in nearly every case the escape could have been prevented had sufficient number of guards been kept on duty

Awful Conditions

I repeatedly called Warden Jones attention to the condition of Webb the insane prisoner but it was twenty seven months before anything was done Captain Shipley testified During all that time not even a blanket was allowed him The handcuffs had worn down into the flesh This case was always kept a secret from the public

Prisoners have been strung up by the wrists for from twelve to twenty four hours for breaking rules and have suffered untold agonies Shipley testified I have seen their lower limbs swell to abnormal size and turn blue Many of the men were already suffering from disease

More money has been spent in hiring automobiles bloodhounds detectives and for telegraph and telephone bills in trying to catch the escaped convicts than would have been necessary to hire additional guards testified Shipley

DOG CREATES A PANIC AMONG RABBI'S GUESTS

Just for Fun' Boy Admits Ending Dinner Yesterday

Pittsburgh Oct 12—A panic among fifteen guests who were enjoying a dinner at the home of Rabbi Jacob Weinberger in McKees port took place Wednesday afternoon when with the suddenness of a meteor a whining yelping bull dog sailed through the window and lit with a splattering crash in the center of the table

Its head plowed into the big dish of potatoes and in its frantic effort to get off the table the canine fell into a big dish of steaming hot soup

The dish upset and its contents went flying all over the guests ruining their fine dresses By this time the dog itself was awfully smeared up

After he had swam out of the soup the excited canine started on a mad race for life round and round that festive board upsetting plates and dishes and at times almost lost in a haze of coffee and victuals which fell in a steady shower

Every time the dog stepped into a cup of coffee or slipped in the butter he yelped despairingly and tried to run faster Finally he fell off the table with the assistance of Rabbi Weinberger

When order was restored and the room cleaned up it turned out that it wasn't the dog's fault after all John Banyak a seven year old practical joker admitted to the police magistrate that he had thrown the dog through the window just for fun

NOT DEMOCRACY BUT MOBOCRACY

Is Initiative and Referendum, Says Ireland

Should Be Buried in the Silence of Oblivion

Let Us Hope that Clamor for Tearing Asunder of Organization of American Democracy Will Sink Back into Tranquil Seriousness Heads Archbishop in Address to Army of the Tennessee

Council Bluffs Ia Oct 12 Initiative referendum and recall were termed the weapons of mobocracy by Archbishop Ireland in an address at the banquet of the Army of the Tennessee here last night After telling the history of making of the modern government by the newly born states of the revolutionary war Archbishop Ireland said

At last the clamor is heard that the organization of American democracy such as the republic has known for centuries and a quarter must be pulled down asunder under the pretext that the people do not govern well but permit directness of popular will to prevail that the clamor is but a passing ebullition of feeling soon to settle back into the tranquil seriousness of thought usually underlying the movements of the masses of the people to be there buried in the limbo of oblivion

Direct government by mobocracy And to avoid mobocracy we have but to stand out with full hibernation of the Union vote down the initiative referendum all patronizing and pernicious legislation which is the new social science Then would have them are not now made but the mind and conscience

SLEUTHS USE GUNS IN RAID

Cleveland Detectives Arouse Citizens of Wooster.

COWBOY TACTICS ALLEGED USED

The Peaceful Little City Has Sunday Excitement.

Proprietor of Cigar Store Is Handcuffed and Customers Threatened by "Dry" Detectives, Who Seize Cards, Chips and Cash Belonging to a Church Deacon—Sleuths Get Away on an Electric Car.

Wooster, O., Oct. 9. Acting like cowboys from the wild and woolly west, seven detectives from Cleveland almost precipitated a riot in this peaceful little city.

The sleuths, said to have been employed by the Anti Saloon league, came to this city through efforts of the Civic league. Four of the men, while in the cigar store of Fred Faber, suddenly flashed revolvers and, pointing them at the customers, seized decks of cards, chips and money. Faber was handcuffed before he realized what had happened. Most of the cash secured, it is said, belonged to an elder in the United Presbyterian church, and was laid on the table while he was making change to pay off one of his employes. At the same time three other detectives, armed with a search and seizure warrant, raided the restaurant owned by John Berger, but found no liquors.

The detectives had no warrant to search the Faber place, it is said. Tom Langdon of Mt. Vernon, employed here, caused a warrant to be issued against one of the sleuths for pointing firearms in a menacing manner.

Escapes on Electric Car.

Fully 1,000 persons gathered on the public square when an officer went to arrest the man, but he got out of town on an electric car, headed for Medina. Sheriff Young and Marshal Gates of Medina were asked to capture the man and boarded the car, but the sleuth resisted and the Medina officers remained on the car till it got to Cleveland. Reaching there the detectives caused the arrest of Sheriff Young and Marshal Gates for disorderly conduct. Congressman Paul Howland furnished $200 bail each for their appearance Thursday morning.

The feeling against the detectives was bitter and it looked when the crowd surged about the car on the public square here as if there might be a tragedy like that which occurred in Newark.

FOUR WORKERS ARE BLOWN TO PIECES

Dynamite Lets Go in Rock Shaft in New York City.

New York, Oct. 9. Trapped in a rock shaft sixty feet underground four men were blown to pieces and six injured, in an explosion at West drive and Sixty-Sixth street, Central park, here early today. The shaft is one of a score or more being sunk at various places in the city in preparation for the aqueduct. The dead were laborers who went down early today to drill holes for dynamite charges. It is believed that a stick of the explosive, carelessly left in the shaft after work Saturday night, caused the disaster.

Inaccessibility of the shaft and the darkness delayed the rescue work, but finally workmen, lowered in buckets, brought up the dead and wounded. Foreman Michael Kearney, thirty-eight, was the most severely wounded of the six.

Superintendent Martin and Foreman Kearney will be held on the charge of criminal carelessness. The blasting was under the direction of the Dravo Construction company, of Pittsburgh.

MEYER FINDS BIG SHORTAGE

Material Worth $3,288,270.50 Is Missing.

SECRETARY BLAMES BAD BOOKKEEPING

Inventory at Washington Navy Yard Made.

First Inventory in Twenty-Five Years Brings the Discrepancy to Light. There Is No Suggestion of Theft, but System of Keeping Accounts Is Condemned—Meyer Explains How Material Goes Without Record.

Washington, Oct. 9.—A shortage of material, estimated at $3,288,270.50 was made known today as a result of the first inventory at the Washington navy yards in twenty-five years. The discrepancy is attributed principally to bad bookkeeping.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer issued a statement which is a thrust at his predecessors' conduct of the navy department.

There was no suggestion of theft. Meyer has employed expert accountants for the navy yards and developed a new system of keeping accounts.

It was said today that in previous years proper allowance was not made on the books for material in the course of construction.

The principal work at the Washington yard is the manufacture of big guns and the forgings and casting for these frequently cost above $100,000. In many cases it was said the yard had issued material to ships, the invoice for which were delayed for months and even years after delivery.

The secretary also said that much work was sent out of the gun factory on rush orders during the war with Spain without being properly billed. Inventories at the other yards in none of which gun making is carried on, failed to show any such discrepancy as that at the Washington yard with its ordnance shop.

AMERICA LOSES AERIAL TROPHY

German Lieutenant Wins Big Balloon Race.

HANS GERICKE A MODEST VICTOR

He Lands in Northern Part of Wisconsin.

Gericke's Figures as to the Distance Sailed from Kansas City Are Revised by Officials of Aero Club, Who Wire Congratulations to Winner at Point of Descent—Lieutenant Lahm Gets Second Honors.

New York, Oct. 9. Lieutenant Hans Gericke sent a telegram to the Aero Club of America, announcing that in his German balloon Berlin II he had landed at Holcombe, in Chippewa county, in the northern part of Wisconsin, after covering a distance of 750 kilometers in the international cup race.

Everyone in the clubhouse got out pencils and there was a crowd around the map in a moment. After a lot of figuring and poring Allan R. Hawley, who won the last year's balloon race after many exciting adventures up north with August Post, straightened up and announced that we would have to hand the victory to the Germans.

According to the map they figured that the German balloonist was too modest in his figures. Seven hundred and fifty kilometers is 464¾ miles, but the measurements done by the club folks on the map gave the lieutenant nearer 490 miles. But he won the race even at his own figures, for his nearest competitor was Lieutenant F. P. Lahm, who dropped down in his Buckeye at Millstone, Wis., 395 miles from Kansas City.

Everybody who had ever had anything to do with balloons felt the keenest sort of interest in the international race this year, for if the Americans had won the Aero Club of America would have kept the trophy. This is the second victory for the Germans, as against three for Americans, since Lieutenant Lahm won in Paris in 1906. But they took it good-naturedly and sent a telegram of congratulations to Gericke at Holcombe.

VANE WOTTRING IS HURT NEAR PROSPECT

Jumps from Auto and Is Caught in Fence.

Vane Wottring, of Prospect, was injured Thursday morning in jumping from an automobile. His foot caught in a wire fence and he was thrown to the ground in such a manner as to injure his back and neck. Wednesday evening, the steering rod of the auto of Dr. Charles Finefrock broke and the machine went into a ditch near the Harshberger farm, south of Newman's. The machine did not turn over, and Dr. Finefrock escaped injury.

Thursday, Wottring, who has a repair shop, went out after the machine. He patched up the rod and started for the garage. After going a short distance the rod came apart, and the auto started to run off a small bridge, but stopped on the brink. Mr. Wottring, believing the machine was going off the bridge, jumped.—Delaware Gazette.

MORMON BRIDE ROUTS ABDUCTORS

MRS. P. C. DAMINA.

A pretty Mormon bride has demonstrated to the world that the sturdy stuff of which the Brigham Young pioneers were made has been handed down to the daughters of the Mormon elders of today. Braving the terrors of a lonely mountain canyon in Utah, and with her fingers trembling on the trigger of a shotgun, Mrs. Mary Damina, a Mormon Bishop's daughter, held at bay a score or more of "Gentiles" who had kidnapped her bridegroom and were treating him to their revenge for his daring to take to himself a Mormon wife.

"Rest? Abroad?" he said. "No, indeed; it's too thick over there for me. The United States is the place for a rest. Here you can spread out without crowding your next door neighbor."

TURKISH WAR ALMOST FARCE

Previous Reports of Casualties Are Exaggerated.

BUT THREE PERSONS KILLED IN FIGHTING

They Are Accidentally Shot During Bombardment.

In Some Instances, the Reports of Dead and Wounded in Africa Are Manufactured and Little Credence Is Placed in Stories Coming from Scene of Disorders—Turks Fire Guns for Curiosity.

London, Oct. 9.—The number of casualties in the great war between Italy and Turkey has resolved itself today in the accidental killing of two men and a woman during the furious bombardment of Tripoli.

During the first days of the war, every capital in Europe teemed with circumstantial reports of fierce fighting by land and sea, but now the cable between Tripoli and Malta has been reopened these reports have been shown to be considerably exaggerated, and, in some instances, manufactured out of whole cloth.

The usual report reached here today of Turkish torpedo boats being sunk in the Adriatic, with the variation of a sensational rumor that the Turks had sunk an Austrian warship. Little credence is placed here in either report.

Despatches from Malta state that fishermen, arriving there from Tripoli, say the town was practically unharmed by the bombardment, and that the Italian gunners fired so widely that most of their shots passed over the forts and buried themselves in the sand. The same witnesses assert that the only casualties were three people killed while watching the bombardment. The fishermen said that the only Turks who had any desire to fight were a few artillerymen who had never fired the ancient guns in the forts and wanted to do so out of curiosity.

SOME EXILES.

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for October 15 Is "The Return from Captivity." Ezra 1:1-11; 2:64-70.

One Persian monarch has been figuring in the newspapers of late, and he has presented rather an ignoble spectacle. Now a more interested constituency—the 28,000,000 members of the Sunday-schools of the world—will this week study about another Persian ruler, known in literature as "The Great King." Cyrus the Great was one of the half dozen world rulers of all history. The known earth was then in vassalage to Persia. What a descent to the weakness, anarchy and misery of the Persia of today!

The other nation that figures in the story is the Jewish people, then, as now, a nation despite their lack of king, capital and organized government. They were exiles in Babylonia and Persia. An interesting analogy is the present-day fact that while many nations are even more eager than Cyrus to get rid of the Jews, they are steadily increasing in importance, power, solidarity and national consciousness. Even the Jews who have remained in Babylonia and Persia until this day and they number hundreds of thousands—are beginning to lift up their heads in newness of hope and self-confidence.

The prophesied exile of the Jews was almost over. The promised return had been permitted by Cyrus, who had various reasons of policy for wishing to possess the loyalty of the Jews, and also to establish them once more in the strategic outpost of his kingdom at Jerusalem. Back of the "Great King," of course, and moving mysteriously upon his will, was the King of Kings. The mightiest of earth is only a servant to do the will of the Most High. God shapes history for His own sovereign purposes, in the promotion of His kingdom.

"Behind the dim unknown,
Standeth God within the shadow,

Taught by Trouble.

Experience is a schoolmaster who always carries a rod. The Jews, unwilling to learn their lessons in any softer school, had been sent into exile. The sole and avowed purpose of the exile was to teach a vagrant-minded and instable-hearted people the lesson of loyalty to God. They had continually wandered after the heathen gods of their neighbors.

Now the great question was, had they learned the lesson designed for them in this severe school? To miss the meaning of adversity is like refusing a precious letter because one does not like the postman's looks. God sends no meaningless trials. "But it has made a preacher out of you," said a close friend to a clergyman, reviewing a deep sorrow through which the latter had passed. One of the vital books of recent months is "Early Letters of Marcus Dods," which reveal the life of the great scholar-preacher-author during the six long years when he was an unsuccessful candidate for a first charge. A lesser soul would have been embittered and spoiled by that ordeal: it was the refining of the gold of Dods' character.

"Before I was afflicted I went astray,
But now I observe Thy word," wrote the Psalmist. That was Israel's experience. In exile it learned that Jehovah alone is God. Never more did its heart wander after idols. The bitterness of exile was sweetened by this fruit: the Jews learned to give God His rightful place.

A Teller and a Doer.

"Of which things also I was a part," wrote Ceasar in his account of his Gallic wars. Ezra is the scribe whose writing we now study; he is the narrator of his record. A historian, he probably compiled several of the sacred books of the Jews; and in a large part of the volume which bears his name he speaks in the first person. His is the testimony of an eye-witness. He was a participant in the scenes he describes. He was a doer as well as a teller.

Down along the Tigris river below Bagdad I saw a great shrine, which was pointed out as Ezra's tomb. The Jews believe that he returned to Babylonia and was buried there. So great is the esteem in which his memory is held that the Jews from a wide region made annual pilgramages to this shrine. Prayers for children especially are supposed to be efficacious when offered here. The descendants of the exiles who remained behind thus honor the memory of the leader of those who left.

For many Jews did not go back home when opportunity offered. Only about one out of six returned to Palestine. The remainder had struck new roots into fertile soil, and had found prosperity. Business was good in Babylonia. Besides, the exiles from the Northern Kingdom had in this foreign land become assimilated with their brethern from Judah. They were doing well socially and commercially, and material considerations triumphed over sentimental and spiritual ties.

The Goers and the Senders.

The stay-at-homes reflect the goers-forth. That is the universal rule. When I climbed the sacred mountain, Fuji-yama, with bands of Japanese pilgrims, I learned that they were but representatives of their respective communities, the whole neighborhood had united to pay the cost. Thus Christian Endeavor delegates go to conventions. So, also, it is with Zionism today; Jews all over the earth pay for the maintenance of their fellow religionists who have returned to Palestine. Practically every Hebrew in the Holy Land today receives a "portion" from abroad.

In this manner the more pious and devoted of the expatriates were helped home. The immense sums necessary for the journey, and for the reestablishment of life in the Promised Land, were provided by those who, for various reasons, were unable to go themselves. Similarly, the great missionary propaganda of today is made possible by the few who go abroad and the many who stay behind. "If you cannot go, send," was a cry raised in Babylonia by Ezra and his lieutenants nearly 2,500 years before it was heard in missionary meetings.

The Restored Treasures.

As the buried libraries of Babylonia are today being dug up to shed new light upon the beginnings of civilization, and as the tombs of Egypt are yielding up their well-kept records, so the treasures of the Jewish temple were restored to the returning exiles by Cyrus.

"God moves in a mysterious way,
His wonders to perform."

He had made Israel a nation by the bondage in Egypt; now He had cured them of idolatry by the exile in Babylon. So He had strangely preserved for them, in the hands of their enemies, the utensils for temple use. They could not have kept these themselves; so Jehovah provided a Babylonian storage vault for them. We may yet learn that He has likewise kept the ark of the covenant in the secret depths of Mount Moriah, to be restored in His own good time.

The return—which a later lesson will enable us to study more in detail—was in sharp contrast to the journey from Jerusalem to Babylon. Then the Jews were captives in tears and misery, spoiled of all their possessions, torn from their homes. Now they were a well-organized company, numbering about 42,000, with more than 7,000 servants. They had the royal favor of the king of the known world. They were properly equipped, and had great treasure, both for their own use and for the rebuilding of the temple. They were a broader-minded and more worldly-wise company than they had been half a century before. Their sojourn at the seat of the world's finest civilization had taught them many lessons that would tinge all their future experience.

Back Home.

"Hard-headed" men would be likely to approve of the Jews who stayed in Babylon, rather than those who went back to the ruined city on Mount Zion. The contrast was complete. Babylon was a great city. The whole world centered there, and sent its tribute of trade and people in a rich and constant stream. Babylon was full of business, social and political opportunities. As the cases of Daniel and his friends proved, the right sort of man might any day fall under imperial favor and contract profitable alliances. So far as prudence could foresee, Babylon was safe from the ravages of war; who would dare attack this so great city, the capital of the earth? The comforts, pleasures and luxuries of life abounded there.

On the other hand, Jerusalem was only a ruin. There were none of the comforts of home, even of the old home that their fathers used to know. Business opportunities would be slight, and agricultural opportunities less. Robbers and hostile armies both were to be feared. Every man who went back would be severely taxed in purse, body and mind for the rebuilding project.

That sort of reasoning would have kept Abraham in the prosperous city of Ur of the Chaldees; and the Pilgrim Fathers in Holland. It was the old, old choice that was offered the exiles. They could have the best, at a high price. Up in Judea awaited varied hardships—but also the pure worship of God. They had to make choice between the material and the spiritual. Sentiment and spirituality called them back to the old home, where they could honor Jehovah, by the restoration of His pure worship upon Mount Zion. Personal ease and profit bade them remain in Babylon. One out of six chose the better part; it is eternal wisdom to seek the freedom and growth of the soul, and to put the concerns of the spirit above the concerns of the body.

PLOT TO DRIVE LORIMER OUT

Is Charge Made by the Senator's Attorney.

SCENTS CONSPIRACY IN SUCKER STATE

Hanecy Says Fair Means or Foul Are Used.

Lawyer for "Blonde Boss" of Chicago Declares a Certain Windy City Newspaper, Governor Deneen's Campaign Manager and Others Seek To Oust Lorimer from Illinois Politics.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Sensational charges that a conspiracy was on foot to drive William Lorimer out of politics in Illinois, were made today at the resumption of the Lorimer hearing by Judge Hanecy, representing the Illinois senator. In questioning former Asemblyman Landee a Lorimer opponent, Hanecy demanded to know why he went to the office of Roy O. West, chairman of the state central committee, and Governor Dineen's campaign manager, and had a conference with Attorney Albert Austrian, attorney for State's Attorney John E. Weymann, the Chicago Tribune, and others hostile to Lorimer.

The senate committee wanted to know what bearing this had on the Lorimer hearing.

"I want to show that a gigantic conspiracy exists to drive Senator Lorimer out of Illinois politics, by fair means or foul. This conspiracy is fostered by the Chicago Tribune, by its editor, Jim Kelley; by its owners, Joseph Medill Patterson, Medill McCormick and others; by Roy O. West, Dineen's campaign manager, and inferentially, by Governor Dineen himself.

"When the 'prosecution' wants a reliable witness to come here and tell a story that heretofore has not been told, that witness always is forthcoming. The Chicago Tribune, representing $10,000,000, and the newspapers engaged in this conspiracy, continually furnish money and new 'witnesses' to besmirch the character of Senator Lorimer."

The witnesses summoned for today were Frank A. Landee, State Senator, of Moline, Illinois; John M. Peffers, former private secretary and now partner of ex-Senator Albert J. Hopkins, of Aurora, and a number of members of the general assembly that elected Lorimer.

Landee's Testimony.

Former Assemblyman Landee, the first witness, testified that he was approached during the contest by Assemblyman Charles Luke, who told him that if Hopkins would do the right thing and "come across" he, Luke, could get him the votes to win the senatorial contest. Luke then asked him. Landee said, to vote for Lorimer. Landee replied that he was pledged to Hopkins. That night, Landee testified, two men called at his home. One of the men acted as spokesman and said he was John Hughes, secretary of the Federal construction company. Hughes told him, Landee testified, that Lorimer was interested in the Federal company and he, Hughes, wanted to know why Landee didn't vote for Lorimer. Hughes told him that if he would vote for Lorimer he would be allowed to control the federal patronage in his district. Landee testified that he told Hughes that he could not vote for Lorimer; that he was pledged to Hopkins; that his word was all he had, but that he was going to keep that. Later, the witness said, he met Hughes on the train and Hughes renewed his request that Landee vote for Lorimer. There was renewed talk of patronage. Landee again refused to consider the offer. Some time after this the witness said he met Lorimer and told him of the incident. He said that he did not like the way he had been approached in Lorimer's interest. Lorimer told him, the witness said, that he should not blame Hughes, as he had "perhaps been sent" to see him. He did not develop that Lorimer himself had made an offer to Landee. While Landee was on the stand, Lorimer entered and took his seat beside his counsel, former Judge Hanecy. Hanecy cross-examined Landee. He developed the fact that Landee had died since the incident involved in the testimony and tried successfully to have Landee admit as part of his testimony involving Luke he had been made public after Luke's death, so that Luke could not deny it.

T. MORGAN OFFERED ANOTHER POSITION

To Take Place in Faculty of Harvard College.

T. Morgan, who recently resigned his position as teacher of history and civics in the Marion High school to accept a position as teacher of economic history in the high school in Boston, Massachusetts, has been offered the assistant professorship of history in Harvard college. It is very likely that he will take the work at that place. Mr. Morgan has also been invited to assist Dr. Hall, the noted historian and author of "The Hall of Fame" in the preparation of his new work, "Immortality and the Hall of Fame."

OHIO HOG RAISERS SUFFER BIG LOSS

State Funds Are Inadequate To Battle with Cholera.

Columbus, O., Oct. 10.—"Ohio will lose from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 worth of swine from cholera this year," said Dr. Paul Fischer, state veterinary. "We get a few dollars to fight this disease when there should be thousands appropriated for the purpose. Pork is bound to go up and the people will pay the freight. Dealers come to my office daily and report that they are losing thousands of dollars on account of the cholera."

The state emergency board will be appealed to for money with which to enlarge the force of veterinarians of the department with which to fight the disease.

The hog cholera serum manufactured by the state is an absolute cure for the dread disease if administered in time, but the trouble is that there are not veterinarians enough to meet one-tenth of the calls which come from the farmers and dealers for the serum.

Daily these who want the serum come to the office of Veterinarian Fischer and plead that some of his men be sent to treat their stock. Dr. Fischer has the same story to tell all of them, and that is he will send his men just as soon as he possibly can.

GIVES JACKPOT CASH TO GAMBLER'S WIFE

Indianapolis Judge Acts in Favor of Woman and Babe.

Indianapolis, Oct. 10.—Judge Collins, of the police court Monday settled a poker game in favor of Mrs. John Foust and her six-month-old baby.

Mrs. Foust's husband sat in a game Saturday night, which John Louden is charged with operating. He should have reached home with $25, but he did not.

The game was raided. Foust and eight others were arrested.

At the conclusion of the trial Judge Collins looked across the bench at the tearstained face of Mrs. Foust and the baby and said the last jackpot, containing about $25, was theirs.

"You may question my right to do this—you may want this money back," remarked the judge, looking at Louden and the others, "but if you do, go ahead and replevin the money."

MAYOR OVERRIDES PROHIBITION LAW

Atlanta Is Wide Open During the Peace Celebration.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 10.—Five thousand soldiers were in line today when the parade started for Piedmont park, where the peace monument was unveiled. Of these soldiers fully 1,500 come from cities of the east which were visited by the Gate City Guard of Atlanta when it toured the north and east in 1879, in an effort to assuage the bitter memories of the civil war. It is to commemorate the success of that trip that the peace monument was unveiled.

All city ordinances have been suspended in honor of the visiting troops. The locker clubs of the city, which keep an unlimited supply of liquor, have been thrown open, and the mayor of Atlanta has issued an order that no policeman is to interfere with a man in uniform unless to assist him to a hotel.

MAN OF MYSTERY CLINGS TO HOPE

Says He Will Yet Prove Identity to His Mother.

Niles, Mich., Oct. 10.—Returning today from a visit in the country where George A. Kimmel was always welcome thirteen years ago, the man of mystery claiming to be Kimmel asserted that he was recognized and welcomed as of old.

In spite of the assertion of Mrs. Estella Kimmel, George A. Kimmel's mother, that the man who recently came to Niles is not her son, the so-called Kimmel still hopes to prove to her that she is his mother.

"I can't see why my own mother won't recognize me," said the man claiming to be Kimmel. "Everybody whom I knew years ago welcomes me. Even in the country where I have been visiting, most of them knew me at sight. I intend to stay here until I have proved beyond a doubt that I am what I claim to be, the true George A. Kimmel."

THIRTY REBELS SLAUGHTERED

Killed by the Federal Troops in Mexico.

SEVENTY WOUNDED IN A BIG BATTLE

Official Report Just Received at Capital.

Government's Report Shows That the Zapatistas Are Now in Control of State of Morelos and Are Cutting Off Federal Forces from Their Supply Base at Guernavaca—Situation Is Declared Serious.

Mexico City, Oct. 10.—The official report of the revolution in progress in the northern part of Mexico states that thirty rebels were killed and seventy wounded in a battle between the revolutionists and federal troops at Chipia De Corzo.

The government's report shows that the Zapatistas are in complete control of the state of Morelos and are cutting off the federal forces from their supply base at Guernavaca.

The situation in this part of Mexico is so serious that the Mexican government has asked permission of the United States to send troops through El Paso and Nogales, in order to reach Sinoloa. No reply had been received to this request.

A dispatch from Insidro states that the bandit, Escobosa, who was terrorizing the Sonora country, has been killed by the federal troops. Twenty of his men are reported to have fallen with him. This relieves the government of one opponent and enables it to concentrate its forces against the revolting Indians.

WOMEN IN RACE FOR PLACE ON SCHOOL BOARD

Mrs. Jeanette Hutchinson and Mrs. Anna B. Whiting.

Mrs. Jeanette Lammers-Hutchinson and Mrs. Anna B. Whiting have filed petitions with the board of elections for places on the ticket at the coming election. The two petitioners are seeking election as members of the board of education on an independent ticket. At the recent primaries, Mrs. Hutchinson fell one vote short of tying Harry Bell, whose name was also filled in on the ticket. The nomination of Mr. Bell was unsolicited, and he has since resigned the candidacy tendered him.

Friday will be the last day for filing petitions for a place on the ticket. Bowling Green township and Tully township have each turned in a full independent ticket, the ticket from the latter township being composed of socialists, the party lacking numbers to secure a place on the primary ticket.

THE COMMISSIONERS RECEIVE PETITION

Move To Secure Election Under Local Option Law.

CAMPAIGN OF WEEK IS CLOSED TUESDAY

The Petition as Presented Bears the Names of 3,975 Signers—Four Small Petitions Bearing Names of About 175 Signers Fail To Reach Those in Charge.

As a result of a campaign of a week for signers to a petition asking for an election under the provision of the Rose local-option law, the petition was filed with the county commissioners, at noon Tuesday, by Attorneys Geo. B. Scofield and John W. Himmeger, acting as representatives of the petitioners.

The petition, as submitted, bears the names of 3,975 petitioners, and in addition to this number those circulating the petition failed to get in four petitions from Marion, Waldo, LaRue and Prospect, those having possession of them neglecting to report. The missing petitions contain the names of about 175 signers. To secure an election 3,002 signers were necessary.

As soon as the big petition was presented, the county commissioners and the secretary of the board proceded to review it and count the names, a task requiring several hours.

It had been anticipated by some that some of the signers would withdraw their names from the petition before it was filed, but no one appeared for that purpose, and the petition went to the county commissioners just as it was circulated.

That there were no withdrawals is believed to be due to the fact that there was very little solicitation, most of the signing being done wholly voluntary. The Marion business district was not solicited at all and care was exercised not to embarrass people who might be annoyed by the presentation of the petition.

The commissioners having counted the names and rechecked their count, found that there was the necessary number and set November 1 for the election.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wise, of Fies avenue, Thursday.

AN INTERURBAN CAR CRASHES INTO WAGON

But Little Damage Is Done as Result of Accident.

The C., D. & M. limited car which leaves Delaware at 4:48, Motorman Frye and Conductor Ruder, demolished a wagon, Friday evening, at the first crossing this side of Worthington. Motorman Frye had his knee quite severely bruised and is unable to be on duty Saturday. The front end of the car was badly smashed, and the wagon which was struck was demolished. A man and boy who were on the wagon escaped with slight bruises, and the team of mules which drew the vehicle was uninjured.

As the limited was nearing the crossing the wagon was noticed going south ahead of the car. According to passengers Motorman Frye sounded his whistle and rang the gong, but notwithstanding, the wagon turned onto the track almost in front of the car. The crash was a lively one. The wagon was loaded with three dead horses and these were sent flying into the air, landing in the ditch along with the boy and man. Motorman Frye was knocked back in the car by the impact and electricity made a brilliant display for a few moments until the trolley was jerked off by Conductor Ruder.

The team of mules which were drawing the wagon ran up the road some distance with the front wheels the only part of the turnout left intact, but were soon caught.

The driver of the wagon was J. V. Kennedy, of south Main street, Columbus. The identity of the boy was not learned.—Delaware Gazette.

A GREEN CAMP GIRL WANDERING IN STREETS

Miss Theresa Johnson Restored to Her People.

In regard to a Green Camp girl, the Ohio State Journal Tuesday morning says:

After wandering about the city streets for four hours and nearly driving to distraction her older sister, who was searching for her, eighteen-year-old Theresa Johnson, of Green Camp, was found at 7 o'clock last evening, in Maple street, by Patrolmen Walker and Davis.

The police were called into the case when the girl escaped from the side of her sister, Miss Inez Johnson, while they were entering a Hocking Valley train for Marion yesterday afternoon.

Endowed with a roving disposition, she had left the parental home in Marion county some time ago, and when found by her family was with friends in Newark. From there her sister brought her as far as this city, where she essayed a second escape.

ENTIRE FAMILY IS POISONED BY BOLOGNA

Physicians Find Victims in Serious Condition.

Mrs. George D. Moore, of No. 121 north Greenwood street, and three other members of the family were dangerously sick Saturday night from ptomaine poisoning as the result of eating a night lunch of bologna. Following the repast, the members of the family retired, but soon afterward all were taken seriously ill. Physicians were called to the home and soon learned the cause of the sickness. Mrs. Moore was more affected than the other members of the family, and was in a serious condition until after the noon hour Sunday. A part of the diet which caused the sickness was turned over to the health officer and will be analyzed.

MRS. J. M. GARBERSON VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

Falls Through Opening to Stairway Monday Afternoon.

Mrs. J. M. Garberson, of south State street, met with a very serious accident, Monday afternoon shortly before 4 o'clock, as a result of which she will be confined to her home for some time. Mrs. Garberson was doing some sweeping and cleaning in the attic when she unconsciously stepped into the opening of the stairway and fell a distance of about five feet. The stairway is not protected by a balustrade and Mrs. Garberson was oblivious of the fact that she was working near the edge of the opening.

Aside from many serious bruises, Mrs. Garberson suffered injuries to her right hip, under her right shoulder and on the right side of her head. Dr. C. T. Wiant was summoned and she was given the necessary surgical attention.

A SALOON TAX RULING MADE

Hogan Bars Way of Assessing the Aikin Tax.

MAKES EVIDENCE DIFFICULT TO GET

Sale of One Glass of Liquor Is Not Enough.

Single Sale, Says Hogan, Constitutes Trafficking in Liquors, but Single Sale, with No Other Circumstances Tending To Show a Business, Does Not Constitute Business of Trafficking in Intoxicants.

Columbus, O., Oct. 10. — An opinion, Monday, by Attorney General Hogan to State Food Commissioner Strode will make it more difficult to assess the Aikin saloon tax against illicit sellers.

It is held that a single sale is insufficient evidence for the imposition of the Aikin tax, though it is sufficient to show violation of the Rose or other local option laws.

The attorney general reaches this conclusion by drawing a distinction between trafficink and the business of trafficking.

"A single sale," Hogan says, "would constitute trafficking in intoxicating liquors, but a single sale, with no other circumstances tending to show that a business was being conducted, would not constitute the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors."

The Rose law prohibits the traffic in "dry" territory. The Aikin tax is levied against "the business of trafficking."

Under this opinion Commissioner Strode's deputies, by buying a glass of beer in "dry" territory, may establish that the local-option law is being ignored, which is not what they are trying to do, but can not proceed to certify the seller to the county auditor for assessment of the saloon tax.

To do that they must get more evidence, how much more the attorney general declares it is not necessary for him to discuss in the opinion rendered.

FAZZIO WANTS SON TO OPPOSE TURKEY

Injunction Stops Italian from Going to War.

Cleveland, Oct. 10.—Mrs. Mary Fazzio has secured an injunction preventing her husband, Charley Fazzio, from taking their four-year-old son back to Italy with him to fight the Turks. Fazzio sold his fruit stand and horse and wagon in order to get funds for the trip.

Mrs. Fazzio is not fired with the patriotism of her husband and today appeared to fight against any modification of the injunction.

NOTHING IN THE REPORT OF DEATH OF LAWRENCE

Marion Man Reported Dead Is Still in Dayton Workhouse,

DESPITE MANDATE OF COMMON PLEAS COURT

Mayor Feels That Exceptions of the State to the Finding of Common Pleas Court Bars the Prisoner from Liberty—Report of Death Proves Groundless.

A report was circulated Tuesday that Redmond Lawrence had died at the Dayton workhouse Monday night as a result of quick consumption. This rumor proved to be false, as the Star phoned the workhouse authorities at Dayton that afternoon, and the superintendent of the place stated that Lawrence was still at work there.

The report served to call attention to the fact that Lawrence was confined to the workhouse regardless of the fact that the common pleas court reversed the decision of the mayor in the bootlegging charge against him, through the failure of the mayor to issue an order for his release.

Lawrence was convicted in the mayor's court of furnishing intoxicants to a couple of fellows and was fined $100 and the costs in the case. The case was taken up on error, and pending a decision in the higher court, Lawrence was sent to the workhouse.

The decision of the mayor was reversed one week ago Monday, and on the same day a mandate for the release of the prisoner was sent to the mayor by W. W. Klinefelter, clerk of the common pleas court.

As Lawrence did not return to Marion, Fred W. Warner, his attorney, thought it rather strange and called on he mayor, Tuesday, to see if he had ordered the release of Lawrence.

The mayor stated that he had the mandate at his private office and had not ordered the release of Lawrence for the reason that the decision of the common pleas court was excepted to. He refused to act on the demand of Lawrence's attorney until he can consult Attorney J. H. Clark, who helped prosecute Lawrence.

ARE MARRIED AT THE HOME OF THE BRIDE

Miss Ethel Belle Pickerl and Mr. Albert Holst.

Miss Ethel Belle Pickerel and Mr. Albert Holst were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Pickerel, of south Main street, Sunday noon.

At 12 o'clock the young people took their places before a bank of palms in the front parlor where they were joined in wedlock by Rev. E. L. Weatherwax, of the Calvary Evangelical church. The ceremony was witnessed by about twenty-seven relatives and a few intimate friends.

Immediately after congratulations had been extended a wedding dinner was served in the dining-room which was prettily decorated with blooming plants and cut flowers, carrying out a color scheme of pink and white. A large bouquet of roses and carnations graced the table.

In the evening, the bridal couple went to their own home on Delaware avenue which had been previously prepared by the groom.

The bride is a young lady of a charming personality and the groom is highly esteemed. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Holst, of Barnhart street, and is employed as a machinest at the Marion Steam Shovel shops.

FOUR LOSE LIVES IN A WHEELING FIRE

A Three-Story Building Is Wrecked by an Explosion.

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 10.—Two men, one woman and a child were burned to death early today, when the three-story building occupied by Ed Kaloniski was wrecked by an explosion later followed by fire.

The dead are: N. Letuck, Mrs. Ed. Kaloniski, Mary Kaloniski, aged three, and an unidentified man.

The explosion is believed to have resulted from escaping gas.

The first floor was occupied as a grocery store, while the second and third floors were used as a lodging-house. Between twenty-five and thirty roomers were asleep in the house at the time. Owing to the excitement which prevailed here there was some doubt as to whether all escaped. The loss will reach $25,000.

At noon all the missing had been accounted for and the death list will not exceed four.

Judge R. M. Wanamaker, Akron, chairman; Fred E. Guthery, Marion, secretary; W. W. Edwards, Leipsic, S. A. Dowman, Celina, and Dr. D. H. Bailey, of Bellefontaine.

All of the old students will be asked to come back on that day. A banquet will be held at Brown auditorium in the evening. A statewide organization will be effected.

FLOUR WILL SOAR IN A FEW DAYS

Cost of Living Will Be Given Another Big Boost.

New York, Oct. 10.—The cost of living is going to receive another boost upward in a few days, according to developments in the market here today. This time it is flour that is going to soar in price. The explanation by the producers is that Great Britain, France and Germany have placed such enormous orders for flour for export that the price must necessarily be raised in the home market.

WRIGHTS AT WORK.

Scarcely a week passes in which an aviator, performing for the entertainment of a crowd, is not hurled to sudden and terrible death. To the public the aeroplane is still a wonderful thing and its performances will not cease to attract eager spectators, for a long time to come. And so long as big prizes are offered in aeroplane contests there will not be wanting men willing to risk their lives for the money.

It will be noted that the Wright brothers do not figure in accounts of these exhibitions. Since returning from Europe, where they went to introduce their machine, they have been little in the public eye. But they have not been idle. They have been quietly at work in their shop in Dayton, trying to devise a better and safer aeroplane. That they have made encouraging progress is shown by the fact that they are about to try out a new aeroplane on the sandy coast of upper North Carolina, where they perfected the machine with which they startled the world three years ago. And the world may hear, any day, that they have a flier which does not beckon to death every time it leaves the ground.

The airmen who make thrilling flights for prizes are undoubtedly doing much for aviation by developing the weakness of the existing areoplanes, but it is such work as the Wright brothers have done and are doing that will make aerial navigation practical in the proper sense.—Cleveland Leader.

A REPUBLICAN LEADER DEAD

Cornelius Bliss Passes Away in New York.

ONCE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR

Serves in Cabinet Under William McKinley.

Death of Bliss Removes from Political Field of Country Another of the Coterie of Republican Leaders Who Have Been in the Forefront of Party's Affairs for a Generation or More—Bliss Leaves Fortune.

New York, Oct. 10.—Cornelius Newton Bliss, for years one of the prominent figures in national Republican politics and otherwise well-known as a merchant and a member of the dry goods firm of Bliss, Fabyan & company, died at his home last night of heart disease.

The end was not wholly unexpected, as Mr. Bliss had been ill for a year, and his family and friends had noted for some time that he was fast failing. He did not, however, take to his bed until a few days ago. While his death is attributed to heart failure, there had been a general breaking down. Mr. Bliss was seventy-eight years old, having been born in Fall River, Massachusetts, in 1833.

Mrs. Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., and Miss L. P. Bliss, a daughter, were at the bed side.

The death of Cornelius N. Bliss removes from the political field of this country another of the coterie of Republican leaders who have been in the forefront of the party's affairs for a generation or more. He was treasurer of the Republican national committee from 1892 to 1908, and previous to that had been chairman of the New York state Republican committee. With the late Senator Platt, Senator Depew and ex-Governor Levi P. Morton, all of whom were his intimate friends, he had for years represented New York state at Republican national conventions.

Refuses to Run.

Bliss twice refused to become a candidate for governor of New York, but following the national campaign of 1896, in which William McKinley was elected president, he accepted the position of secretary of the interior in the McKinley cabinet.

Mr. Bliss held this position for two years and then resigned because of stress of private business, a reason which had always previously influenced him to decline public office. In business, Mr. Bliss had been rated as a highly successful merchant and he had amassed a great fortune.

Mr. Bliss twice refused to accept the nomination for mayor of New York City, but as a citizen he was always active in movements for municipal reform. He was a member of many organizations, being president of the Union League club for several years and vice president of the chamber of commerce. He was always staunch for the protective tariff and was for some years president of the American Protective Tariff League.

A PASTOR'S PECULIAR CODE OF MORALITY

Bigamous Marriage Lands Preacher Behind Jail Bars.

Joliet, Ills., Oct. 10.—In a little cell in the county jail here today, Rev. John Hardin, pastor of the Little Congregational church, at Beecher, Illinois, sought to explain his peculiar code of morality by which he justified bigamy on the simple grounds that his first marriage wasn't a happy one.

"Both women knew the exact facts," Hardin explained, "so I could see nothing immoral in marrying the second time without the formality of a divorce."

Hardin, who was born in India, married in England several years ago. He deserted his wife and children because, he said, of incompatibility of temper. He came to America and accepted the pastorate of the Beecher church. Last night, confronted by his vestrymen who had learned that his marriage to Miss Amanda Brenker was bigamous, he confessed.

SETTLE GRUDGE IN A SHOTGUN DUEL

Kenton Men Fight Out Grievances as Followers Look On.

Kenton, O., Oct. 10.—William Yazel and Michael Hickman fought a duel here Monday with shotguns. Hickman suffered serious abdominal injuries and Yazel was wounded in the right arm.

The men had been enemies for a long time, and the duel was arranged when they and some of their followers met. All are employed on the onion marsh land west of here. The duelists, at a distance of thirty feet apart, blazed away at each other at the count of three. Each fired only one shot. Followers of the duelists engaged in a pitched battle after the duel, but no one was seriously hurt.

BREACH OF PROMISE TANGLE UNEARTHED

Chicago Father and Son Figure in a Fight for Girl's Love.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—If Miss Emma Thiele, twenty, is awarded $50,000 in her breach of promise suit against Edward Franz Scholz, Jr., she may use it to furnish a home as Mrs. Edward Franz Scholz, Jr., and thereby hangs as queer a matrimonial breach of promise tangle as ever was unearthed in these parts.

Scholz, Sr., and Scholz, Jr., both loved Miss Thiele. Scholz, Sr., won her, according to the fair one. Then Scholz, Jr., said a little chat to pop Botham and when he returned he wasn't nearly so keen after Miss Thiele.

Scholz, Jr., was glad. But he wanted to know why, and, being a precocious youngster, he "frisked" father's clothing and found a love letter from a New York girl, who signed herself "Doll Baby."

Immediately, Scholz, Jr., bled himself to Miss Thiele and gave her the letter on condition she would make his rich father for breach of promise. She did. Scholz, Sr., and Scholz, Jr., still live together, but it is Scholz, Jr., who is Miss Thiele's steady beau these days.

SATURDAY - - - OCTOBER 14

We haven't yet been able to figure whether those Long Island deputy sheriffs sought to prevent the flight of Miss Moissant because they feared it would interfere with the attendance at the churches or affect the Sunday patronage of the saloons.

"What is a perfect wife?" asks the Toledo Blade. A lot of fellows could answer that, but it might seem too much like bragging.

It's hardly probable that the publication of the fact that J. P. Morgan is opposed to Taft brought any surprise to "Uncle Jud" Harmon.

If we get it right, Mr. James R. Garfield carefully mounted the rear end of the La Follette bandwagon, grasped the back firmly and let himself down to his full length and then gently dropped to the broad highway below.

But when the aeroplane has superceded the auto what will they use to locate the flying machine after it lands?

Surgeon General Wyman, U. S. army, has issued a warning to his countrymen to take precautions to prevent the spread of typhoid fever. General Wyman strongly recommends the use of anti-typhoid vaccine, but says this should in nowise supplant the use of the ordinary preventives.

While we do not doubt that there is rottenness in the management of some of the state institutions, Attorney General Hogan might land a man or two in the penitentiary as a sort of evidence of good faith.

It is now said that Collector Loeb will be the chairman of the Republican national committee in the next campaign and that President Taft desires to retain Secretary Hilles in his present place. They are both good men, wherever placed.

Baron Rosen says that during all his stay in America he was never misquoted by a reporter. It is evident that the baron is not one of those who rely on the reporter to exercise judgment for them.

Perhaps no better illustration of the volume and character of the passenger traffic on the Great lakes—in all the world without a rival as a water way—could be had than the launching of a $1,500,000 passenger steamer, a day or two ago, to augment a fleet of eleven fine steamers used by the Detroit & Cleveland and allied lines.

We are a queer people. We make for ourselves a local-option law. Under it the people, by a majority vote, put liquor-selling and gambling under proscription. Then a majority either proceeds to violate the law or to permit its violation. This savors of self-deception or hypocrisy. Wooster is a small college city. Its people voted it "dry." And yet on Saturday night, when Cleveland detectives, employed by a local civic society, raided places running in violation of law, a thousand men and boys thronged the streets crying for the blood of the officers. If it were not that this epitomizes the greatest evil of our economic existence—the disregard for law—the instance would have the comic elements of opera bouffe.

The first operation of these fellows who propose to extract gold from the sea, always seems to be to first extract gold from the pockets of the investors in their stocks, and there the extracting business generally ends, so far as they are concerned.

We note editorial utterances in the esteemed Columbus Dispatch, from day to day, which cause us to lean to the view that that enterprising educator of the masses would consider it an act of kindness should some good Samaritan stretch a life net along the route so that it could jump in safety off the Harmon bandwagon.

The Hon. W. L. Finley is said to want Marion and Wyandot counties tied onto the Kenton district so that it will be Democratic and the Hon. W. W. Durbin may be sent to congress. We have no quarrel with "Smiling Bill" Durbin, but doesn't it strike the voters over in the district, to the west that we have in congress, as it is, enough prestidigitators?

After a New Jersey boy and girl of fourteen years each had wandered about together for two weeks in search of a license and a minister to marry them, their parents considered it the part of wisdom to consent to the marriage. A little wisdom displayed in bringing up their children might have saved the parents being called upon to consent to such a marriage.

It is hard to imagine any biographer who could speak in higher and more unreserved praise of Senator La Follette than his autobiographer.

TAFT'S SPEECHES NOT PLEAS OF CANDIDATE

There is much variety in the tone of the comment which the trip of President Taft across the country has evoked. Some of it is favorable, some hostile; there is the effort to censure and the attempt to deride. The Democratic press and the insurgent Republican press are both censorious while many of their correspondents write demanding the instant return of the president to the White House and an account of the time and money expended in traveling. Attention is called in scathing terms to the fact that neither George Washington nor Abraham Lincoln went "skyhooting" over the country "electioneering for votes," while no reference is made to the change of conditions since the days of those great statesmen.

One thing should be admitted by all Mr. Taft's critics, and that is that this is no pleasure jaunt. It is nobody's idea of a good time to spend half of the time for four weeks in the stuffy confines of a private car, which is private in name only, and the other half in meeting reception committees, placating their local jealousies, shaking hands with multitudes, dining with a fresh set of hospitable diners each night, making innumerable speeches and listening to others while carrying on by wire and mail the duties of the most onerous office in the world.

Oh, no! Mr. Taft is an experienced traveler. He is human enough to like the plaudits of the crowd, but if he could have consulted his own pleasure and comfort he would have found both in a well-earned, much-needed vacation with his family about him at Beverly. But the feeling has grown up in this country that the president should from time to time go abroad among the people to instruct and be informed. To this end, congress has made annual appropriations to defray the expense of these presidential visitations. It has become the duty of the chief executive to make these excursions. And, in this connection, who can estimate the tremendous aid Abraham Lincoln could have given to the cause of the North had it been possible for him to have met the people, discouraged, almost dismayed, at their homes in the third year of his administration? There would never have been need of a resort to the draft to fill the ranks of the men at the front.

Mr. Taft's speeches are not satisfactory to his critics; nothing that he could say would be. The insurgents would be satisfied with nothing short of his surrender to them of the government and its patronage; the standpatters want absolute assurance that there will be no tariff revision and no further regulation of the trusts or "interference with business;" the Democrats criticize for political purposes in any event. But Mr. Taft is reaching many people personally, and further is getting into the public print his own views on many questions upon which he could obtain but slight attention at his office in Washington. A president can communicate with his constituents only by letter, through messages to congress, and through public addresses. He may not edit a daily paper or monthly magazine, he may not speak at large through the congressional record, and, in many matters, it is not possible to write an open letter in the guise of private correspondence or run the risk of misquotation by the giving of public statements in private interviews or to favored papers. In other lands the need is met by giving the cabinet officers a seat and a voice in parliament. It might be well if this custom were followed in this country, even if we did not go to the other extreme practiced abroad of having official newspapers.

It is charged that Mr. Taft is making a defensive campaign. Well, every existing administration is continually under assault and must make defense or ignominiously surrender.

And so Mr. Taft has gone abroad in discharge of what he very properly conceives to be his official duty, to explain his official course, to make clear to the people by personal contact and by direct statement his policies, plans and purposes. And his speeches are hitting the mark. He is not an orator, his addresses are not polished as were Harrison's, they are not so aggressive and dramatic as Roosevelt's and he has not the personal magnetism of a McKinley or a Blaine. But his utterances are dignified, earnest, and concise statements of the conclusions honestly formed after thoughtful consideration. And they are as courageously frank as any that ever came from the lips of a public officer. They are the declarations of a statesman, who believes in his cause and holds a high sense of the responsibility he holds in trust from the people; they are not the plea of a candidate begging for a reelection. There is no question that Mr. Taft wants the endorsement of his administration implied in a renomination and reelecton, but he would not take the one or seek the other at the cost of the sacrifice of his convictions. And personally, with the question of public approval of his course aside, there is no question but that he would gladly surrender an office that imposes tremendous duties and responsibilities upon its holder and still subjects him to the carping faultfinding and senseless criticism of disappointed partisans of his own and the malignant hostility of the opposition party.

OHIO-COLUMBUS CENTENNIAL PLANS

Herbst Will Address Business Bodies of State.

Columbus, O., Oct. 12.—As special representative of the Ohio-Columbus centennial commission, Fred W. Herbst, president of the Columbus chamber of commerce, has just started on an extended tour of the entire state and will visit each county in Ohio. His mission is to interest the business and civic bodies of the various cities and counties in the coming celebration.

A hasty preliminary survey of the state has convinced Mr. Herbst that the various business organizations throughout Ohio will want to be represented during the centennial. From various cities, such as Cleveland, Dayton, Zanesville, Portsmouth, Newark and Coshocton, he has received indications of interest and has been asked to make a special address before their chambers of commerce and boards of trade. The particular feature of the celebration which is arousing statewide interest is the historical pageant, which will set forth the salient features of the state's history from the days of the earliest records to the present. All the counties will be given an opportunity to take part in this.

Alights on Head and Has His Neck Wrenched and Body Bruised.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 12.—Horace Kearney of St. Louis fell with his Curtiss aeroplane as he was attempting to go in the air and narrowly escaped death. His machine was wrecked. A crowd of 10,000 witnessed the accident. Kearney, who was walking on crutches as the result of an accident at St. Louis in August, when he fell and broke his legs and several ribs, attempted to make his flight in a field adjoining the Indiana university campus. He either did not have the power to rise or lost control of the machine, and it caught in a tree about 200 feet from where he started. The machine whirled around and fell back hard. Kearney was thrown clear of the machine. He fell on his head in a small brook and his neck was wrenched and his body bruised.

THE RAILROADS.

According to the Erie trainmen the war between Italy and Turkey is responsible for the increased number of Italians, who have been returning to their native land during the past week. Extra coaches have been added to many of the Erie eastbound trains in order to accommodate the Italians enroute home. During the past few days, Erie trains, Nos. 4 and 8, have carried extra coaches and had large numbers of Italians on board. Most of the foreigners, the railroad men say, are anxious to get home as early as possible, and this is taken as an indication that they are called home on account of the war scare.

FOUND FLOATING IN THE LITTLE SCIOTO

Is the Body of W. F. Inskeep of Village of Essex.

BODY IS DISCOVERED EARLY FRIDAY MORNING

Inskeep Comes to Marion Last Friday To Attend the County Fair—Is Seen Here That Day by a Resident of Essex—That's the Last Seen of Him Till Friday.

The body of W. French Inskeep, aged about sixty years, who resides at Essex, was found floating in the new channel of the Little Scioto river about 200 feet east of the bridge on Prendergast road, Friday morning. The body was discovered by William Morton and Howard Rowe, who reside in the vicinity and were enroute to work. When they saw the object in the water they at first mistook it for a sack, but on discovering that it was the body of a man, they informed Charles Gorenflo, who notified Chief Klinefelter of the discovery.

The chief notified Hess & Markert and with the latter went to the scene in the firm's ambulance. The body was floating slowly up stream in the middle of the new channel, which is quite wide and deep. Chief Klinefelter secured a long piece of wire, and, forming it into a hook, towed the body to the bridge where the bank was low and permitted taking it from the water.

Brought to Marion.

The remains were brought to the Hess & Markert morgue, where they were identified by papers found in the clothing. Several receipts for dues paid in the Rising Sun Lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Richwood, were found in one of the pockets. The most recent receipt was for dues paid to October 1, 1911. He also had a pawn ticket, dated september 29, last, for a watch which he pawned with F. J Schultz for $1.50.

The body was badly bloated and discolored, and from the decomposed condition in places it is believed it had been in the water for nearly a week. When discovered, the body was floating face downward and the legs were doubled up. There were no marks of violence that would lead to the supposition that the man was assaulted or murdered and thrown into the stream.

Relatives at Essex were communicated with Friday and stated that the victim left home at that place Friday, September 29, to come to the Marion fair.

Comes To Fair.

Inskeep left Essex to walk to Richwood, from which place he expected to come by train to Marion. He was seen at the fair here Friday afternoon by one of the residents of Essex As he was known by a comparatively few persons in Marion this was the last trace of him.

The fact that he pawned his watch on his arrival in Marion would indicate that he had but little money when he came here and was probably compelled to walk home. It is the supposition that he started to walk to Agosta to take chances of catching a ride to Essex, and probably walked into the river in the dark or stopped on the bridge to rest with the probablity that he fell asleep and fell into the water.

The relief committee of the Knights of Pythias lodge of this city had the body prepared for burial and notified the Richwood lodge, of which the deceased was a member.

Inskeep was a single man, and resided with his mother at Essex. He was in a good physical condition and worked at any common labor he could secure. A brother, James Inskeep, of Essex, also survives.

Brother Views Body.

James Inskeep, a brother of the dead man, arrived here about 10:30 o'clock, and identified the remains. He stated that his brother had $22 when he left home last Friday morning. An old silver watch was found in the clothing of the dead man. The brother stated Friday that the victim was accustomed to dealing with the pawnbrokers and had several watches at home.

Owing to the decomposed condition of the body, it was put down in lime.

The remains were taken to Essex for interment Friday afternoon, being taken direct to the cemetery. This was done on account of the condition of the body and from the fact that the mother of the deceased is eighty-seven years old and quite sick. It is feared that the news of her son's death will kill her if she learns of his fate. For several days she has worried and expressed the belief that he was dead for the reason that he did not return home.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL MEETING A SUCCESS

The Richwood Fair Attracts a Big Attendance.

LAST THREE DAYS ARE VERY AGREEABLE

A Reunion of Survivors of the Fourteenth Regiment Is Held at Richwood—The Attendance Is Not Very Large — Richwood Notes Gathered During the Past Week.

Richwood, O., Oct 9.—[Special.]—The twentieth annual meeting of the Richwood Tri-county Fair association, which was held here, last week was the most successful in point of attendance and otherwise, of any fair ever held here. The weather the first of the week was very threatening, but by Wednesday it had cleared off and the three days, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, were ideal. Friday afternoon, just at the close of the racing, it began to rain. The program was finished and everybody was tired and ready to go home. By Saturday noon the race horses were all gone, some being shipped from here to Bellefontaine for the race meeting October 12 and 13, and some going to Bucyrus. The only serious accident during the week was in the 2:25 pace, Wednesday, when Dan Line, owned and driven by W. T. McCoy, of Wilmington, was caught in a jam at starting. The driver was thrown from his sulky and both bones of his right leg were broken, just above the ankle. The attendance, Thursday, was unusually large, many pronouncing the crowd the largest ever on the grounds. The music by the Fourth Regiment band of Columbus, with Miss Nicols, as contralto solist was very much enjoyed and altogether the fair was pronounced an eminent success from every standpoint.

R. M. Davis, of Mt. Vernon, spent a few days, during the past week with his sister, Mrs. Elmer Hall, and other relatives.

G. W. Montgomery and M. E. Stamats attended the thirty-second annual reunion of the First Ohio Veteran Volunteer cavalry, held in Memorial hall in Columbus, Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Simons, of Sidney, New York, are visiting their son, A. B. Simons, and family. They were accompanied here by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walls, of Clinton, Iowa, who had been visiting in Sidney. After spending a few days here, Mr. and Mrs. Walls left for Iowa.

The second reunion of G Company, of the Fourteenth Regiment, Ohio National Guards, which disbanded in Richwood over thirty years ago, was held Wednesday evening in G. A. R. hall. The first reunion of the company was held last year, during home coming week when a permant organization was effected. At the meeting last week the same officers were re-elected, as follows: president, John Ogan, secretary, Frank L. Adams. Although only a few members were present at the second reunion a pleasant evening was spent in talking over old times and planning for future meetings. It was decided to hold the reunion next year on Thursday evening of fair week and an effort will be made to have many members present from a distance. The only out of town member present, Wednesday evening was A. E. Layton, of Columbus.

Charles Spratt, of Portsmouth, spet fair week with his father, N. W. Spratt, and otehr relatives.

Harold Holverstott, of Pittsburgh, spent the past week with friends in Richwood, where he formerly resided.

John Mitchell has purchased the Richwood marble works of Rev. O. W. Williams, who formerly conducted the business. Rev. Mr. Williams will travel for an eastern granite firm.

Mrs. Edward McCombs is visiting her son, Don McCombs, and family, of Toledo.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Curry, of Wadsworth, spent fair week with the former's mother, Mrs. Georgia Curry.

Mrs. W. E. Young and little daughter returned to their home in Akron, Friday, after a few days' visit with Mr. Young's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. V. R. Young.

MT. GILEAD MAY NOT LOSE ROAD

Plans Are Formulated To Save Short Line to Village.

Ever since they were threatened with the abolishment of the Short Line to Edison, the citizens of Mt. Gilead have been exceedingly busy in an effort to have the Big Four company recede from its position and continue the operation of the branch road. F. B. McMillin, general manager of the Hydraulic Press company, has been largely instrumental in bringing the matter before the Big Four management and succeeded in securing an interview with General Manager Van Winkle, at Cincinnati. He represented to Mr. Van Winkle that the hydraulic press concern alone had shipped 126 carloads during the past month, exclusive of smaller freight, express and incoming consignment. As a result of a protracted interview, the Big Four general manager authorized the statement that he believed that some plan might be worked out which will enable the Big Four to continue the operation of the Short Line.

Another matter partially accomplished was the possible reinstatement of the morning T. & O. C. train north as far as Bucyrus. The T. & O. C. officials have agreed to give the matter serious consideration.

In the meantime another proposition is likely to be worked out. It carries with it the turning over of the Short Line right-of-way, which is owned by Mt. Gilead, for an electric line from Galion, via Mt. Gilead, Edison and Cardington to Delaware. Parties, who are said to be reliable and financially able, will then place traction cars and power upon the Short line and handle all passenger and freight traffic between Edison and Mt. Gilead, meeting every train, including the T. & O. C. trains, and maintaining an hourly schedule. By this arrangement no finance would have to be raised, the plan being to bond the trackage and equipment coming into their ownership to raise funds as required. A motor car of great power would be placed in operation immediately.—Galion Inquirer.

EPIDEMIC OF THOAT AND EAR TROUBLE

As Result of Sale of Squawkers at the County Fair.

Many persons of the city are suffering from an epidemic of throat an ear trouble, the epidemic being confined chiefly to children. The epidemic is supposed to have had its origin from a man who sold squawkers at the fair. One of the men who sold the squawkers had his throat tied up and his voice indicated that he was suffering from throat trouble. He tested the squawkers as he sold them, and in view of the fact that the epidemic is more prevalent with those who purchased the noisy balloons, it is the opinion that this is where the epidemic had its origin in this city. The children suffer from severe sore throats, and in many cases gatherings of the cars also results.

BELLING PARTIES IN CITY MONDAY EVENING

Brides and Grooms Displayed in Carts and Wagons

YOUNG PEOPLE AND CHILDREN IN CROWDS

At Two Homes the Newly-Married Couples Are Taken Out and Hauled About the City—Marion Band Serenades Mr and Mrs Albert Holst—A Treat Follows

The quiet peaceful life of Marion was much disturbed, Monday evening, by the banging of tin pans and the tooting of tin horns. Three belling parties made merry during the evening by riding their victims over the city in carts or showering them with rice in their homes. Hundreds of young people and children enjoyed to the utmost the discomfiture of the brides and grooms who took their rides with the best of grace and joined with the bellers in having a jolly time.

Mr and Mrs Rhea Delaudet who returned from their wedding trip Sunday night were found by the Frank Brother & Company force and a large number of others at the home of the bride's parents Mr and Mrs Edward Conatty of Windsor street about 7 o'clock. The newlyweds were placed in a cart decorated with signs bearing all kinds of inscription fitting to the occasion. After the crowd had given them a ride—such as only brides and grooms have the pleasure of enjoying—over the principal streets of the city the groom treated the Frank force and his friends at the Dodgeright Inn. Before leaving the Conatty home the Frank force of which the bride was a member presented her a handsome tablecloth and napkins.

Mr and Mrs Perry Cartier who were married a couple of weeks ago were also given a ride over the city by a large crowd of their friends. Mr and Mrs Cartier were at the home of the bride's parents Mr and Mrs Frank Cast of Lee street when their friends invaded the home and heedless of their protests placed them in a spring wagon and gave them a joy ride. The merry crowd was later given a treat by the groom.

At the Pickerel home on south Main street Mr and Mrs Albert Holst a bride and groom of less than two days were serenaded by the Marion band, of which the groom is a member. Later a large number of neighbors and children gathered about the home and gave the young people an old fashioned belling. A treat was forthcoming and the bellers left wishing Mr and Mrs Holst a happy future.

REMARKABLE FLIGHT WITNESSED SUNDAY

Migratory Birds Stop for Rest South of City

THOUSANDS SWARM IN A SMALL GROVE

Days of the Passenger Pigeon Are Recalled by the Sight—The Thousands of Birds Attract Attention from the Surrounding Country Make Noise Like Escaping Steam

People residing two miles south of the city near the route of the Pennsylvania railroad and many persons out gathering nuts Sunday morning witnessed one of the most remarkable flights of birds ever seen in the country since the days when the passenger pigeons swarmed in millions over the countryside.

The birds evidently came in during Saturday night or before day break Sunday morning and stopped to rest in a wooded patch of some ten acres. They remained in the grove until after 10 o'clock when as if by pre arranged signal all rose and mounting high the feathered columns in various divisions winged its way southward.

While the little visitors rested in the grove attention was drawn to them by the noise of their wings and calls. The sound was like that of escaping steam and one could have been led to believe that the noise was that of several locomotives concealed in the grove. Many interested spectators gathered in the wood and found the flight made up of almost every species of bird big and little which migrates from north to South in the face of winter. Bluejays, warblers, catbirds, pee wees, robins, blackbirds and dozens of others of the were in evidence and their numbers formed the most interesting sight.

To the nature student and the bird lover the sight was one to be remembered through a lifetime and he declares for the southland was not without inspiration for those who find interest in the Artemus Ward tales.

The affidavits against the trio were filed as a result of Officer Thompson visiting the place during an alleged ale. As there was no desire to prosecute the alleged violators a settlement was arranged. The affidavits against Mrs Burke and James Ryan were withdrawn and Carter entered a plea of guilty. He was fined $50 and the costs while the two former paid the costs in their cases. The payment of the fine imposed against Carter was suspended on the promise that he would stop the business and that no drinks of any kind would be sold at the place and that he would not engage in the business.

Chief Klinefelter and Officer Thompson made a trip to Lincoln Park Sunday afternoon for the purpose of breaking up a poker game that was in progress in the park. All that was necessary to accomplish their purpose was their appearance and the players gathered up the money and ducats, fish and took to their heels. One of the fellows left his hat behind and that was taken by the officers. The owner can secure the hat by calling on the chief.

OLYMPIC OF GREAT LAKES AND HOW CARGO HANDLED

The William P Palmer Is Giant Ship of Lakes

THIS POWERFUL BOAT BUILT IN CLEVELAND

Can Carry More Ore at a Load Than the Greatest Ocean Liner—Vessel Is Equipped with Elaborate Accommodations for Officers of Steel Corporation, Owners of Boat

The Olympics Lusitanias and Mauretanias of the Great lakes are the vessels built by the United States Steel corporation for the transportation of iron ore from Lake Superior ports to ports along Lake Michigan and Lake Erie whence the ore is shipped by rail to the mills. The flagship of the fleet is the William P Palmer recently put into service. This vessel is equipped with elaborate accommodations for officers of the steel corporation and their guests on lake trips.

The William P Palmer could be dropped inside the Olympic but she is the giant ship of the Great lakes nevertheless. She is 610 feet in length over all to the Olympics 552½ feet while he beam is only a little more than half the Olympics and she is only one third as deep but she can carry more iron ore at a load than the greatest Atlantic liner. She is named for the president of the American Steel & Wire company a subsidiary of the steel corporation and was built at the yards of the Great Lakes Engineering works at Cleveland.

The Isherwood or longitudinal system of construction after which she was built is the method now employed on the great lakes where capacity and serviceability rather than beauty are essential. The longitudinal type of construction gives greater strength to the bottom than the ordinary type.

The growth of the old style lake freighter to the William P Palmer type is interwoven with the development of the great lakes waterways and the improvement of cargo handling apparatus. The lakes are navigable for only eight months and not only must the great freighters be capable of only good speed but the delays at ports must be reduced to a minimum. The W E Corey a vessel slightly smaller than the Palmer on a recent occasion entered the Lake Superior port of Two Harbors and left again in an hour and a half having taken on 10,000 tons of ore in thirty nine minutes. This cargo was later unloaded in four hours and a half. This steamer made thirty eight trips in one season from Lake Superior to Lake Erie and Michigan ports and transported 400,000 tons of ore.

In 1910 the lake freighters carried 42,820,201 tons of ore of which 34,04_,80[illegible] went to Lake Erie ports and the balance to those of Lake Michigan. Many of these freighters carried coal on their return trip although the steel corporation vessels usually go empty. Lake Erie ports alone shipped 18,406,469 tons of bituminous and 4,170,813 tons of anthracite coal west.

In the early days ore was hauled laboriously to the lakes, wheeled on board small vessels and at Sault Ste Marie had to be unloaded carried over the portage of a mile and loaded again below St Mary's Falls. A canal around the rapids was begun in 18[illegible]2 and finished in 18[illegible] and as late as 1860 the small schooners employed in the ore carrying business transported only 134,401 tons in the entire year. The ore was unloaded in tubs operated, with block and tackle having mules and horses for the motive power and the unloading of a 100 ton cargo in two days was accounted excellent work.

Steel was introduced into the construction of the lake freighters in 1886 and with the widening and deepening of the channel of St Mary's canal the use of the modern ore freighters is made possible.

The vessels of the type of the Palmer are simply floating ore tanks the entire length being devoted to the purpose for which the vessel was built with the exception of enough room at the stern to accommodate the boilers engines and a portion of the crew and at the bow more quarters, the wheelhouse steam windlass and other apparatus. Here also are the quarters for guests of officers of the steel corporation on lake trips. The upper deck is flush from the forecastle aft and is broken only by the thirty-six transverse hatches having sliding steel covers.

These vessels are sometimes loaded by a mammoth crane which lifts an ore car from the railway tracks swings it out over the vessel capsizes it and shoots its fifty tons of ore down a hatch. In other ports the ore is held in mammoth bins thirty feet and more above the dock and from these it is run down in steel chutes about four feet wide and semi circular. The loading is thus more easily accomplished than the unloading.

The machine operates a self filling ore grab bucket. Up to the time this machine was perfected the ore had been handled in one ton buckets the size the most satisfactory for hand filling but with the new mechanical buckets the capacity seems to be limited only by the clear space available in the hold.

Since the introduction of the grab buckets two types of machines have been developed one in which the bucket is suspended by operating ropes and one in which the bucket is mounted on the lower end of a vertical rotating leg operated by an oscillating beam. One of these machines at Conneaut operating four fifteen ton buckets unloaded 11,1[illegible] tons of ore from a vessel of the William P Palmer type in four hours not long ago.

The arms of these unloaders reach into the hatches of the vessels grab their fifteen tons in each bucket and are then elevated and swung back over the dock to be emptied into gondola cars or into carriers that convey the ore to piles that accumulate during the summer to furnish the winter's supply for the furnaces at Pittsburgh. These buckets are susceptible of turning in a horizontal plane about their vertical axes and they can thus rake up the ore in a nearly fore and aft line form a heap and then gather up the fifteen tons at one time. The operator of the machine is stationed inside the vertical member at its lowest extremity, so that he descends with the bucket into the hold of the vessel for each load. Rear Admiral Caspar F Goodrich U S N who recently witnessed one of these machines in operation thus describes it:

"Everything is done by electricity, and so complete is the control that the buckets seem almost human as they search the corners of the ship and scrape the scattered ore together before seizing it in their capacious maws."—New York Sun.

CHILD OF THREE YEARS FALLS INTO A SPRING

Daughter of Mr and Mrs I Engle Has Narrow Escape

I C King and wife residing on the D I A Goodley farm on the Iberia road all but lost their daughter of three years Dima last Sabbath afternoon. That the child's life was saved is all but in the nature of a miracle. The child had gone to the spring. Having missed her the older sister of some six years went to the spring and to her horror saw the feet of her sister projecting from the top of the tile. With difficulty the child was quickly removed and as quickly was a physician called from Mt Gilead so that within a comparatively few minutes the apparently lifeless child was being treated by the doctor through whose efforts signs of life soon became apparent and the child was spared to the parents whose anxiety can not be expressed. A United Press wire from Akron Wednesday makes reference to the heroic action of C M Deibold of this city one of the best steam shovel engineers working out of this city in an accident in Akron Tuesday night. The wire is as follows:

A section of the Prospect street viaduct 200 feet long crashed forty feet to the railroad below at midnight Tuesday when a cement block supporting a central beam settled in the sand and allowed the pin plate to slip.

No one was on the bridge at the time. Underneath where the Erie railroad is grading for a freight station C M Deibold of Marion engineer on a steam shovel risked his life to save the machine. When the bridge began to crack and groan Deibold instead of running as other workmen on the night shift did stuck to his post and ran the shovel out from beneath the bending iron.

The cement base in the sandy material should have had a footing ten feet square instead of five and the plates supporting the beam was set on the edge instead of in the center of the block.

OFFICIAL REPORT OF OHIO CROP CONDITIONS

Facts Gathered by Ohio Department of Agriculture.

CONDITION OF CROPS THROUGHOUT STATE

Facts Gathered by the Correspondents of the Department of Agriculture from Various Parts of the State—A Great Fruit Crop, Due to Modern Methods in Orcharding

The following report is computed from returns received from the official correspondence of the Ohio department of agriculture.

Wheat estimated area harvested 2 032 139 acres product per acre fifteen bushels total estimated product for 1911 31 092 382 bushels; quality compared with an average ninety four per cent crop of 1910 still in producers hands eleven per cent.

Oats area as returned by township assessors 1 193 072 acres product per acre thirty one bushels total estimated product for 1911 46 442 742 bushels quality compared with an average, eighty eight per cent.

Barley fall and spring area as returned by township assessors 24 182 acres product per acre twenty six bushels total estimated product for 1911 622 837 bushels quality compared with an average eighty eight per cent.

Rye area as returned by township assessors 66 663 acres product per acre sixteen bushels total estimated product for 1911 1 04 021 bushels quality compared with an average ninety five per cent.

Corn prospect compared with normal yield ninety one per cent cut up for fodder eighty per cent average date for fodder cutting September 19.

Potatoes probable total yield compared with last year fifty two per cent.

Tobacco prospect compared with an average seventy five per cent.

Pastures condition compared with an average ninety eight per cent.

Apples prospect compared with last year 12 per cent.

Ohio's estimated wheat production for harvest just past was 31 092 382 bushels. This is an approximate shortage of 136 000 bushels compared with the estimated production of one year ago. The average production an acre is fifteen bushels. The quality of the grain is estimated at ninety four per cent compared with an average. The crop of 1910 still remaining in producers hands is estimated at eleven per cent. Ohio should not produce less than 40 000 000 bushels of wheat annually but until a marked increase is shown in the area seeded this is not be accomplished.

While the area seeded to oats for 1911 harvest was somewhat greater than in 1910 the total production does not equal last year's crop. The present estimated production is 46 442 742 bushels as against an estimated production of 1 0 0 bushels one year ago. The quality of the grain is estimated at eighty eight per cent compared with an average. The average production an acre is thirty one bushels.

Based upon thirty five bushels an acre representing normal—100 per cent—correspondents estimate the corn prospect at nine one per cent. Reports from township assessors show that 01 601 acres were planted to corn. From the prospect now reported this should produce approximately 0 8 bushels. On the corresponding date one year ago the production was estimated at 8 1 1 bushels.

Potatoes area as returned. The prospect for the state as a whole is estimated at fifty two per cent compared with 1 1 production. Sixteen counties report prospect at less than thirty five per cent while in but twelve counties is prospect reported at better than seventy per cent. The failure of this crop is attributed to the serious drought.

Ohio's apple crop is most bountiful. Compared with last year the prospect is estimated at 12 per cent. The awakening of the people to the good effects following scientific orcharding is shown in the present apple harvest.

BANKER WALSH TO GET PARDON

Attorney General Approves Aged Man's Release.

DATE OF RELEASE NOT MADE PUBLIC

Will Be Known Only When Walsh Is Liberated.

Walsh Makes Application for Parole. When Board Meets at Leavenworth, Kansas, Last Week—The Board Acts Favorably and Recommendation Is Sent to Wickersham for Approval.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Although official announcement was withheld it became known today that Attorney General Wickersham has approved the recommendation of the board of parole that John R. Walsh, the Chicago bank wrecker, be paroled from the Leavenworth penitentiary.

In refusing to make public announcement of his decision, the attorney general is merely following the unbroken precedent of the department to maintain secrecy about such matters. This rule was originally established for the protection of prisoners whose efforts to reform would be hampered by publication of their crimes and imprisonment.

Walsh made his formal application when the board of parole of the department of justice made its annual visit to Leavenworth last week.

The board acted favorably on the application and its recommendation was presented to Attorney General Wickersham yesterday by Superintendent Ladow. The actual date of Walsh's release, like all other details, is withheld by the department of justice and the date on which the aged banker will obtain his liberty will only be known when he is released at Leavenworth.

President's Opinion.

Walsh's parole, with the usual restrictions requiring him to make regular reports to the prison officials, follows an unsuccessful attempt to obtain a pardon from President Taft.

May 24 last the president refused, saying:

"It would defeat the object of the law and present a demoralizing difference between the punishment meted out to the ordinary criminal whose circumstances have naturally led him into crime and one whose position in society should have made for him strongest restraint against violation of the law."

Walsh's plea to the parole board was the same as to the president—that his violations of the laws were technical and did not involve moral turpitude and secure him no financial benefit; that all the depositors of his banks were paid through the sacrifice of his private fortune; that he was attempting to build up industries of benefit to the country; that he is an old man, not likely to live long and one who has borne a good reputation and lived a life of simplicity and not of self-indulgence.

The Conviction.

Walsh was convicted of misapplication of the funds of the Chicago National bank, of which he was president. He was sentenced to imprisonment for five years and began serving his sentence January 19, 1910. He owned a large interest in three banks—the Chicago National, the Equitable Trust company, and the Home Savings bank, and used them to furnish money for the development of several railroads, limestone quarries, coal mines, and other enterprises. The banks failed because of the use of their money in the Walsh enterprises and the other banks of Chicago, in order to avoid a panic, took over their holdings and Walsh's properties and paid the depositors in full.

It is understood that Walsh's relatives have arranged to take care of him and to take him to some quiet place in Illinois where he will spend the rest of his days, reporting from time to time through the United States district attorney in the district where he intends to reside.

CONFESSION IN HANDS OF LOCAL PROSECUTOR

Walter Carmen Gives Details of Kelly Store Burglary.

CARMEN WOUNDED AND IN A HOSPITAL

Says He Is Accompanied in the Robbery by Albert Freeburg—They Are Put Off a Train Here and Burglarize Store Before Leaving the City—Freeburg Is in Jail.

Prosecuting Attorney C. L. Justice is in possession of a written confession which he secured from Walter Carmen, one of the two young men who burglarized the clothing store of W. P. Kelly, of west Center street, the morning of September 10.

The confession was secured the afternoon of October 6 at St. Francis' hospital, in Columbus, where Carmen is now confined suffering from a bullet wound in the back of the right hip. The confession was made by Carmen of his own free will and accord and without hope of reward.

In the confession, Carmen made clean breast of everything that transpired while he was in Marion and implicated Albert Freeburg in the burglary. The latter is now being held in the county jail in default of a $500 bond for his appearance before the grand jury, having waived examination when arrainged before Justice C. E. Gompf, Septmbr 25.

Carmen stated that he was seventeen years of age, and that he had been living with his grandparents in Burlington, Iowa. He said that his mother is dead, and that he did not know if his father is living or not. Carmen says he met Freeburg at Mitchell, Indiana, the meeting taking place when Carmen crawled to the top of a passenger train and found Freeburg lying there. They beat their way to Cincinnati and from there went to Portsmouth. From the later-named place they went to Columbus.

Strangers in City.

When asked if they came here for the purpose of pulling off some job, Carmen informed the prosecutor that they did not. He said they were beating their way to Toledo and were put off a train here the afternoon of September 9. They hung around here and spotted the Kelly store. That evening, they went to a boxcar to sleep and expected to be frozen out about 12 o'clock, but it was not cold and they slept until twenty minutes of four. After waking up they went to the Kelly store where Carmen says he pulled out the meshing over the widow and Freeburg broke the glass in the upper window and opened the catch. Carmen says he went through the window and opened the door to let Freeburg in.

In regard to the time, Carmen says it was just beginning to get light when they entered the store. A light was burning in the center of the store, and as near as he could remember there were lights burning in the show window. To prevent being seen by pedestrians on the street, Carmen explained that they shoved a rack of women's long coats to such a location that they would be hidden, and it was behind this shield that they packed twenty-two suits of clothes in suitcases.

The Sale of Suits.

Of the twenty-two suits taken from the store by Carmen and Freeburg, the former says they got but two suitcases with six of the suits to Columbus. There they managed to dispose of them, Carmen stating that they received quite a bit for them, but that they were sold at different times and he did not know the exact amount. Carmen stated that they attempted to board a southbound freight on the Hocking Valley, and that after he had thrown on his two suitcases, Freeburg was unable to get on the train. Carmen stated that he ran along by the caboose and went three or four cars ahead to board the train, but the brakeman started over the train and he was unable to get on to recover the suitcases. He did not know what became of them.

A second trip was then made to the Kelly store and eight more suits were packed in two suitcases. These were hidden in a separator back of the store. Carmen admitted leaving his black hat in the store and taking a brown one. He also took a pair of garters. He claims that Freeburg took four yellow shirts out of a case, picking out the right size and placing them in a suitcase. He said they each put on one of the shirts and threw the suitcase, containing the other two, off the train near a bridge at Delaware. According to Carmen they were in the store about an hour in all. They also took a pair of wire pullers from the store, but threw them away as they entered Columbus. According to Carmen this is the first deal of the kind he was ever in.

Confession Signed.

Carmen stated that Freeburg claimed to be twenty-eight years of age, but that he did not know how old he was. He said Freeburg was not a communicative fellow and about the only thing he ever told him was about places where he worked and such stuff, but never said anything about being out on burglarious expeditions of any kind. As near as Carmen could remember, Freeburg stated that his home was in San Francisco. Carmen was not familiar with the date that the burglary was committed, but remembered it as being on Sunday morning, for the reason that they landed in Columbus on a Sunday morning and had a discussion as to whether or not the stores would be closed. He gave a description of the Hotel Nordica, where he said they ate a lunch while here.

Relative to Carmen being shot, he said Freeburg shot him accidentally. In reply to a query as to whether he knew that the shooting was accidental, Carmen answered that he knew it was. When asked if Freeburg had a note of his, Carmen replied in the affirmative and said that $25 belonged to him and that he understood Freeburg had a note for $40. Carmen said that Freeburg never told him that he was acquainted with the manner and way of breaking into places, but that he seemed to know all right.

At the conclusion of the story, Carmen was asked if he would authorize the man with the notes of the confession to transcribe them and sign his name to them, or if he would sign his own name. Carmen replied that his name could be signed to the confession, or that he would sign it himself. He accordingly fixed his signature to the confession on the following day in the presence of Dr. C. A. Black and Roscoe R. Walcutt.

SUFFRAGE MAY STILL BE WON

California Women Are Pleased with Returns.

ARE HOPEFUL OF GETTING BALLOT

Plurality Against Amendment Is Cut Down.

Suffragettes Are Confident of Victory as Returns Pour in Indicating the Amendment to Constitution Giving Them Right To Vote Will Be Carried—Cities Vote Solidy Against Allowing Women the Ballot.

San Francisco, Oct. 12.—Scarcely a doubt remains that the constitutional amendment extending suffrage to women has been passed by a plurality of from 1,000 to 2,000.

At noon today, with fewer than 250 precincts to be heard from, the earlier plurality of 6,000 against the amendment had been cut to 112. All the precincts still unreported are in the rural districts and suffrage leaders declare they were certain these will retain a sufficient plurality in favor of the amendment to more than wipe out the city vote against it.

Women Jubilant.

San Francisco, Oct. 12.—With only 659 precincts in the state still to be heard from the indications are today that the amendment to the state constitution extending the ballot to women will be carried. This result is by no means certain, but returns since yesterday morning have cut down the plurality against the amendment to such a small figure that the suffragists are confident of victory.

The 2,484 precincts thus far heard from show the following vote on the suffrage amendment:

Yes, 111,557; no, 112,326.

One newspaper here endorses the prediction of leaders of the Equal Rights association that the amendment will carry by a majority of 1,000.

Yesterday, the returns showed a plurality of more than 6,000 against the amendment. These returns, it is pointed out, were mostly from the larger cities, which were admittedly against suffrage. Since then, country precincts have been heard from, and they have steadily cut down the 6,000 plurality. Suffrage leaders declared that the 659 precincts still unreported are all in rural districts. A plurality of two to the precinct would be sufficient to carry the amendment.

Returns so far serve only to increase the tremendous pluralities polled for the initiative, referendum and recall and appointive railroad commission amendments.

SOME EXCITEMENT ON WEST CENTER STREET

Officers Called To Prevent Expected Trouble.

BIG CROWD GATHERS TO WITNESS FIGHT

Creasap Brothers Have Trouble with William Hultz and Another Worker in the Marion Steam Shovel Shops Discharged During the Day. William Iams Discharged.

Chief Klinefelter, Captain Bond, Officers Cusick and Thompson were called to the vicinity of the shops of the Marion Steam Shovel company, about 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, by a report that a large number of employes were grouped in the vicinity, and trouble of some kind was expected. As nearly as could be learned, the crowd had gathered expecting to see a battle as a result of a little fistic encounter Wednesday noon.

From what could be learned from the officers and bystanders, William Hultz and another employe of the company were discharged by Foreman Sam Creasap, of the machine shop, for refusing or neglecting to follow orders, the officers not getting the name of the other employe. Hultz and his fellow-employe, it is said, threatened to lay for Creasap at noon. At the noon hour Sam Creasap and his brothers, Frank, Daniel and Harry, enroute back to work, saw Hultz in front of Hotel Nordica, and it seems Sam went up to Hultz to give him opportunity to get even. One report has it that Frank and Daniel Creasap took a hand in the fight which followed, but others state that they simply interfered with some who sought to take a hand in the melee, Frank holding back a man, named Thomas, who wanted to mix in. In any event, Hultz was badly whipped.

The story of the trouble passed through the shops, and at closing time a big crowd of shopmen and residents of the vicinity gathered to see what might be on the program for the evening's bill. However, there wasn't any trouble, and the presence of the officers was unnecessary.

The hearing of William Iams on a charge of stealing $45 and a gold band ring from John W. Looker, was held in the mayor's court Thursday. The defendant was represented by Attornew J. W. Thompson and the prosecution was conducted by City Solicitor E. T. Boyd. After the testimony of Looker the prosecution rested. The state asked for a dismissal of the case and a motion for dismissal was sustained by the mayor.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HOLD A CELEBRATION

Landing Day Is Observed by the Members of Order.

AN ADDRESS GIVEN BY W. P. MOLONEY

Vocal Solos Are Features of the Evening—Evening Is Concluded with a Banquet and Season at Cards—Tribe of Ben Hur Meets. Secret Society Notes.

The Knights of Columbus celebrated Landing day at their hall, Wednesday evening, the celebration being held a day early so that it would not interfere with those who wish to hear "Mother" Lake Thursday evening.

The attendance was large and the evening was passed very pleasantly.

The program was opened with musical numbers. Miss Elizabeth Molloy rendered a piano selection, "El Travotori," in a very pleasing manner. A vocal duet, "Larbora Watch," Williams, by Charles F. Hess and Julius Martin, was a feature of the evening. A vocal solo, "Carmena Waltz Song," Wilson, by Miss Leona Gurley, was quite well received.

After this selection, Father Joseph Denning introduced W. P. Moloney, who delivered a brief, but very interesting address in which he reviewed the life of Christopher Columbus. The speaker traced the discoverer through his early life, and drew word pictures of the poverty and hardships Columbus endured that he might carry out his ideal of voyaging around the world and proving his theory that the earth was round. The voyage and the discovery and the benefits accruing to all mankind were dwelt upon. Although brief, the address was pleasing in every detail.

After the talk Julius Martin sang a tenor solo, "For Love's Sweet Sake," and Mrs. Cornelius Breen sang a soprano solo, "The Nightingale Song," by Nevin. Both were thoroughly enjoyed by the music lovers.

The accompanists were Miss Nona Kelly and Dr. Robert Ramroth.

After a few remarks by Father Joseph M. Denning the evening was concluded with a banquet and a season of cards.

A regular meeting of Ithamar Court, No. 8, Tribe of Ben Hur was held, Wednesday evening, with a very large attendance. The report of the representatives to the district convention in Findlay last Tuesday and Wednesday were received. The representatives were Mrs. Mary S. Rhoads, Mrs. S. B. Lewis and S. R. Reber. After the business of the evening, a house picnic was enjoyed. The next meeting will be held in two weeks.

The Ladies of the Maccabees met in regular session at their hall, Wednesday afternoon, and arranged for the celebration of the nineteenth anniversary of the order to be held next Wednesday night. Open house will be kept, no admission will be charged and a fine program will be given. Knights of the Maccabees and their families are especially invited.

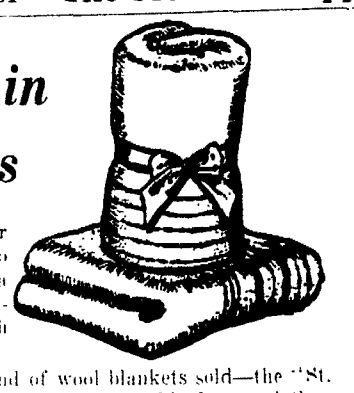
Honesty in Blankets



Blankets are sold for warmth. Appearance also counts, but when you buy a blanket you want the greatest amount of warmth with the least weight.

Here there is only one kind of wool blankets sold—the "St. Mary's." Only new wool is used in these blankets and they are all wool. The price of these blankets is the lowest a wool blanket can be sold for—$11.00 to $4.50.

Here cotton is sold for cotton, and wool for wool. Here you are told that a "wool-nap" blanket hasn't really an ounce of wool in it—that it is simply long cotton yarn combed to a fleece of woolly softness.

To those wishing a warm, light-weight cotton blanket we especially recommend "Beacon Blankets." These are made from new cotton and sell from $3.00 to $4.00.

Other Cotton Blankets range in price from $2.25 to 59c.
